ROCHESTER,
WITH STROOD, FRINDSBURY, AND UPNOR.

ROCHESTER is a city and parliamentary and municipal borough, the head of a Bishop's see, and of a petty sessional division, the seat of a customs port of entry and the head quarters of an inland revenue district, and is 29 miles from London, 8 north from Maidstone, 7 south-east from Gravesend, 27 north-west from Canterbury and 42 in the same direction from Dover, on the high road to Dover, and on the south bank of the navigable river Medway, in the Mid division of the county, lathe of Aylesford and Medway union, Strood and Frindsbury forming part of the Strood union, and in the rural deanery and archdeaconry of Rochester. The North Kent section of the South Eastern and Chatham railway has a station at Strood, the line crossing the Medway by an iron lattice bridge, constructed in 1890; the line is continued with a station at Rochester, and a terminal station near the boundary of Rochester and Chatham, called the Chatham central station. The Chatham section of this railway has a station at Rochester bridge, in Strood, where the line crosses the river by a girder bridge, and there is another station in the Rochester High street. The city, which is built on a somewhat irregular plan, and extends for a considerable distance along the bank of the Medway, is connected with Strood by a handsome and substantial iron bridge of three arches, erected in 1857 and 1858, from designs by Sir William Cubitt, at a cost of £200,000, defrayed partly by accumulated funds arising from the bridge estates, the remainder having been borrowed on mortgage; the bridge has a centre arch of 178 feet, and two side arches of 140 feet each: the river Medway is under the jurisdiction of a Conservancy Board, to whom in March, 1882, the Corporation surrendered all their ancient privileges and superintendence over the river Medway for a sum of £65,000.

The first charter of incorporation was granted by Henry II. in 1165, and confirmed by succeeding monarchs up to the time of Charles I. by whom a new charter was granted; the municipal body now comprises a mayor, recorder, 6 aldermen and 18 councillors; under the provisions of the "Municipal Corporations Act, 1835," the borough was divided in three wards. By an Order in Council, dated 13th May, 1901, it was re-divided into six wards, viz.: Frindsbury, St. Margaret, St. Nicholas, St. Peter, Strood and Troy Town; quarter sessions are held here, and there is also a commission of the peace for the city, which is well lighted with gas and supplied with water from works at Luton, belonging to the Brompton, Chatham, Gillingham and Rochester Waterworks Company. The electric light is also now used by many business houses, and is produced from works situated in Chatham.

The parliamentary borough returned two members from Edward I. until the passing of the "Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885," which reduced the number to one. The limits are co-extensive with the municipal borough and comprise Rochester, Frindsbury Intra and Strood Intra.

By an Order of the County Council, confirmed by Order, No. 31,627, of the Local Government Board, dated Sept. 30th, 1894, and under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 & 57 Vict. c. 73), the parish of St. Margaret Rochester has been divided into two, Intra and Extra, the former comprising that part of the old parish in the municipal borough, and Extra the remainder.

The limits of the port of Rochester were declared October 31st, 1882, to extend from the north-eastern extremity of the Isle of Graine in Kent, easterly across the entrance to the Medway and along the coast of the Isle of Sheppy, to the Land's End in the parish of Warden (being the boundary of the port of Faversham), and to extend seawards from the coast within the said limits three miles from low water mark, including the river Medway, and also the water called the "West Swale," as far as an imaginary line drawn from Elmley Chapel, in the Isle of Sheppy, to Swale Church (limits of the port of London), on the mainland, the said line being the boundary of the port of Faversham, and including further all islands, creeks, harbours and places within the said limits.

Fishing boats and their implements are distinguished by the letters R. R.

Rochester was called by the Britons Dourbryf, signifying "a swift stream," in allusion to the rapidity of the Medway. The Romans called it Durobrovis and Durobrovum: by the Saxons it was denominated Hroffeceaster, from the name of one Hroffe or Roffe, who erected some buildings here, and from the Roman "castrum," implying that the Romans had a fortified port here, hence the Latinised adjective Roffensis. Ethelbert the Bretwalda and King of Kent founded a Bishop's see here in 604, when Justus, who was sent from Rome A.D. 601, to assist St. Augustine in the conversion of the Anglo-Saxons to Christianity, was appointed the first bishop. In 676 the city was destroyed by Ethelred, King of Mercia, and again by the Danes in 839: being rebuilt, it was besieged by these marauders in 885, but relieved by King Alfred: in 986 it was attacked a second time by King Ethelred: in 998 sacked by the Danes, and in 1088, William Rufus, after a six weeks' siege, took the castle.

Rochester was nearly destroyed by fire in 1130 and 1137, and in 1174 the city and part of the cathedral were burned. In 1215 the castle was taken by King John, after a siege of twelve months; in 1216 it surrendered to the Dauphin Louis of France and in 1217 was retaken. Simon de Montfort, Earl of Leicester, the founder of our Parliamentary liberties, made an attempt upon the castle in 1264, and failing to capture it, held possession of the city and despoiled the church; Wat Tyler, in his insurrection of 1381, also attacked the castle, and here too Jack Cade's rabble rout dispersed themselves. Queen Elizabeth visited this city in 1573; Charles II. slept here on his landing at the Restoration, and the Dutch in Charles II.'s time sailed up the Medway and burnt several vessels, and in 1688 King James II. on his abdication, secretly embarked at Rochester in his flight to the Continent.

The see of Rochester was founded by St. Augustine early in the 7th century. In Saxon times the cathedral church was parochial as well as cathedral, and was served by secular priests: Gundulph, the second Norman bishop, replaced the seculars by regulars, and built a new cathedral church, the eastern parts of which were devoted to the use of the monks, while the nave served as the parish church, the vicar being appointed by the monks: when in 1423 the parishioners built a separate parish church (St. Nicholas), the cathedral church then ceased to be parochial.

The Cathedral of St. Andrew, Rochester, was begun by Bishop Gundulph, 1077-1108, but is of various ages, and consists of choir, with transepts and chapels, nave, aisles, transepts with transeptal chapels on the eastern side and a central tower; adjoining the north end of the great transept on the east are the remains of Gundulph's tower, a massive building 24 feet square, with walls six feet in thickness, probably once forming a transept tower, as at Exeter. Ernulph, the architect of great works, while Abbot of Peterborough and Prior of Canterbury, completed the church, built the dormitory, infirmary and chapter house and lengthened the nave by two bays eastward, 1115-25: the narrow Early English choir, of which William de Hoo, when sacrist, is the reputed builder, was first used May 9th, 1227, and is raised considerably above the nave, and approached by a flight of steps to an arched entrance in the wall, closed by gates, separating the choir from the nave; each side of the choir has four compartments with lancet arches, and the roof is groined, springing from clustered shafts of dark marble: the choir was restored by the late Sir Gilbert Scott R.A. in 1874-5 when much of the original woodwork of the 13th century, with other portions added in the 16th century, as well as some 14th century wall-painting above the stalls, was carefully preserved and the floor richly paved: the walls are adorned with the fleur-de-lis and lion, and the arms of successive bishops from Gundulph: on the south side are three Decorated sedilia, restored in 1825, which mark the ancient site of the high altar, before the Lady Chapel was thrown into the choir in the 15th century: the choir transepts were added by William de Hoo, with the offerings made at St. William's shrine and the north transept is a chapel dedicated to that saint (canonized in 1256); the south transept is roofed with oak, part dating from the time of Edward I.: the crypt, which extends under the whole length of the choir, is mostly Early English and was completed by William de Hoo in 1227; it was restored about 1897 at a cost of between £600 and £700: the tower rises from the intersection of the western or great transept with the nave and choir, and, as originally built in 1352, by Bishop Shepey and Hamo de Hethe, consisted of a low tower with a short and inelegant though venerable spire, added in 1479: the modern debased and incongruous structure was erected by Mr. Cottingham in 1827 and rests on arches, springing from fine clustered banded shafts, and is square, and embattled with tall pinnacles; the north wing of the main transept, Early English, was built by the monk, Richard de Eastgate, sacrist and Thomas de Meopham: and the south wing by the monk Richard de Waldene, about the year 1200: on the western side of the south wing is St. Mary's chapel of three bays, and on the eastern side the muniment room.

The stone screen between the nave and choir was adorned in 1890 with canopied niches to contain figures of bishops, as a memorial to the Very Rev. Robert Scott D.D. dean of Rochester, 1870-87; this screen supports the organ, which is in two parts, and serves for the divine services held both in the nave and choir.

The nave is the most ancient of any in the kingdom and is Norman (except the two easternmost arches on each side, rebuilt probably with the intention of its complete reconstruction, and the windows, which are almost all of Decorated or Perpendicular date); the arches, therefore, consist of six Norman and two Early English arches, two of the Norman piers being octagonal and others having attached shafts; above is a rich triforium of semi-circular arches, opening into the aisles, but extending along the six Norman bays only and above this rises a lofty clerestory, with windows of late Perpendicular date: the modern oak roof is flat, supported on corbels: the Norman font, used since 1850, has been removed, and a new one placed at the west end of the nave in memory of the late Rev. Hy. William Burrows M.A. Canon of Rochester 1881-92; the north aisle was begun by Richard de Eastgate and completed by William Axenham in the 13th century; the south aisle was built in 1240. The restoration of the west front, a noble specimen of the Norman style, was begun in 1888, and completed about 1898; the total cost of this and works connected with it amounted to £7,358; the doorway, although much worn, is altogether unrivalled as an example of the Norman style; it consists of a deeply recessed semi-circular arch, enriched with beautiful mouldings of four orders, on shafts with highly elaborated capitals; on the two opposite shafts are figures, much defaced, of Henry I. and

Queen Maud and the tympanum bears reliefs of Our Lord and the Apostles, with figures of cherubim and evangelistic symbols; on either side of the arch and extending across the flanking turrets is an arcading with niches, enclosing recently placed figures of Gundulph and John of Canterbury, presented by the Freemasons of the neighbourhood; the four arcaded turrets at the end of the nave and aisles, destroyed about 1760, have been completely restored, and were finished in 1894; the two smaller turrets which flank the great west window rise to the parapet in three square stages, and above this in two octagonal stages, and terminate in spirelets; the turrets at the end of the aisles are considerably larger, but differ from each other; that at the north-west has five square stages and a kind of low broach spire; the south-west turret is also square in its three lower stages and octagonal on the two upper stages, and is finished with spired capping, its height being greater than that of the corresponding turret; the whole of these turrets are enriched with narrow arcading.

The west ends of the aisles have enriched Norman windows, but the rest of the exterior of the nave is plain; the large Perpendicular west window of eight lights is of the date of Henry VII.; this and the Norman windows were filled with stained glass in 1885 as memorials to the Royal Engineers who fell in Afghanistan and South Africa, as recorded on each side of the doorway; the stained east window was replaced in its original form in 1874; at the south end of the great transept memorial windows were unveiled Aug. 9, 1888, to Maj. Gen. Charles George Gordon R.E., C.B. killed at Khartoum, 26 Jan. 1885, and to the officers and men of the Royal Engineers who were killed, or died from their wounds or disease, in the Egyptian and Soudan Campaigns of 1881 to 1885, and to those officers who served and were killed in the Peninsula and at Waterloo: at the north end of this transept are other stained windows.

The principal monuments in the cathedral are as follows: North-east transept -- Bishop Walter de Merton, drowned in 1278, a fine tomb dating from the transitional period between Early English and Decorated, with pyramidal canopies, restored by Hussey in 1849; Bishop John Lowe ob. 1467, an altar-tomb; here also was the shrine of St. William of Rochester, a baker of Perth, murdered outside the walls of Rochester, when on a pilgrimage to Jerusalem, in 1201, by a servant of Prior Silvester and canonized in 1256; north side of choir -- Bishop John de Shepey, ob. 1361, an effigy with original colouring, discovered in 1825, and modern canopy; Presbytery, north side -- Bishop Gundulph, ob. 1107, a simple stone cist; and Bishop Thomas Inglethorpe, ob. 1291, with a canopied effigy of Petworth marble; south side -- Bishop Laurence de St. Martin, ob. 1274, with a perfect effigy, beneath an Early Decorated canopy; and Bishop Gilbert de Glanvill, ob. 1214, a coped tomb of Petworth marble, much mutilated; south choir aisle --

Bishop John de Bradfield, ob. 1283, a mutilated tomb, with canopy and effigy: north-east transept aisle -- Bishop Hamo de Hethe, ob. 1352, with a rich canopy of Decorated work; nave -- tomb of John, 1st Baron Henniker, d. April 18th, 1803; and an incised slab to Bishop John Fisher, ob. 1535; there is also a monument to Richard Watts, ob. 1579, the founder of the charity bearing his name; a brass tablet to the celebrated novelist, Charles Dickens, whose boyhood was passed in Rochester and who died at Gad's Hill place, near the city, June 9, 1870, and a marble portrait medallion of Joseph Maas, the singer, d. 1886, formerly a chorister here.

The total length of the cathedral is 310 ft. the nave being 159 ft. long by 65 ft. 4 in. broad and 55 ft. high, and the choir 110 ft. 6 in. long, or, with the lady chapel, about 164 ft.; the main transept extends for 122 ft. 3 in. the choir transept for 92 ft. and the west front has an extreme breadth of 94 ft.; the central tower is 156 ft. high and Gundulph's tower 95 ft.; at the south-east corner are some Norman remains of the ancient chapter house and cloisters; the former, partly erected by Bishop Hamo de Hethe and now rebuilt, has a very beautiful west front, elaborately carved with the zodiacal signs; the doorway, attributed to Bishop Shepey, 1352, is a rich work, set between two highly-sculptured arches and represents the Church as a prelate and the Jewish Synagogue as a woman blind-fold, with other figures, apparently of ecclesiastics, accompanied by symbolical designs; the cloister occupies a unique position on the south-east side of the choir, an arrangement which occurs in no other cathedral; to its southern wall was attached the refectory, built by Silvester, the prior, after 1177 and there still exist remains of a passage through the wall to the pulpit, as at Chester Cathedral and Beaulieu Abbey, Hants. A sum of £14,000 was spent between 1827 and 1834 in restorations; in 1840 the whole interior of the cathedral was renovated and during the period 1871-79 a further scheme of restoration was carried out at a cost of £23,300, and since then several stained windows have been erected by the Royal Engineers, at a probable cost of £2,000. The library of upwards of 1,100 volumes, contains some ancient MSS. and among others the celebrated register of the diocese, the "Textus Roffensis," A.D. 1120 and the "Custumale Roffense," composed about 1320.

The establishment of the cathedral consists of a dean, four canons, two minor canons, six lay clerks, eight choristers and four probationers, with a Grammar school attached, having on the Foundation a master and twenty scholars. The gross income of the Dean and Chapter has been returned at £7,178 yearly and the net income at £5,106. The Bishop's see comprises the archdeaconry of Rochester in this county and the archdeaconries of Kingston and Southwark, in Surrey; the Bishop, who resides in London, has a suffragan, the Bishop of Southwark, to assist him in the oversight of a diocese which is now in point of population the second in the kingdom. Three gates of the Priory remain: -- the Prior's, an embattled tower on the south-east; the Deanery or Sacristy, adjoining the north transept; and the College Yard or Cemetery Gate, which led from the Market cross to the west door, stands near the High street. Of the three precinct gates, the north or St. William's, is destroyed, but the embattled arch of the south cloister still exists: the almonry, on the south-west, has been converted into a prebendal house. Minor Canon row was built in 1736. The ancient Bishop's palace is divided into dwelling houses.

Rochester had formerly four parish churches, but the site of St. Mary's is unknown.

The church of St. Margaret is of stone, now chiefly in the Italian style, having been wholly rebuilt, with the exception of the tower, at the beginning of the present century, but retains a plain embattled western tower, of Perpendicular date, containing 6 bells; in the church is a palimpsest of brass: in 1872 the church was restored and renewed and a stained east window inserted: there are 900 sittings, 450 being free. The register dates from the year 1569. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £230, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter, and held since 1902 by the Rev. Joseph Kershaw Wilson M.A. of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge.

The church of St. Nicholas is chiefly of flint in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles; it was erected in 1421, but greatly enlarged in 1624, and restored in 1892, and has a tower, of Perpendicular date, containing 2 bells; there are several brasses and tablets to the Foord and Gordon families, and a curious octagonal stone font with the word "Cristian" round it in ancient capitals. The church possesses some very valuable communion plate, the gift of former citizens; there are sittings for 954, about 320 being free. The register dates from the year 1624. The living is a vicarage, with the rectory of St. Clement annexed, net income £191, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Rochester, and held since 1899 by the Rev. Augustine Briggs M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge.

St. Clement's church has been demolished and the parish is united to that of St. Nicholas.

St. Peter's is an ecclesiastical parish, formed 28 August, 1860, out of St. Margaret's; the church, erected in 1859, at a cost of £6,000, is of stone and brick, in the Decorated style, and has a tower, containing a clock and one bell; the east and west windows are memorials to members of the Nicholson family; there are 800 sittings, 561 being free. The register dates from the year 1860. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £195, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Rochester, and held since 1899 by the Rev. Henry Arthur Hickin, of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge.

BORSTAL is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1902, by an Order of His Majesty in Council, from the parish of St. Margaret. The church of St. Matthew is a building of stone, at present consisting only of a nave, part of which is temporarily used as a chancel: there are 250 sittings. The living is a vicarage, in the gift of the vicar of St. Margaret's, net yearly value £200, with residence, and held since 1902 by the Rev. Arthur Cooper-Marsdin M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge, and M.A., B.D. of Trinity College, Dublin. The population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1901 was 1,850.

The Meeting House for the Society of Friends, in Northgate, erected in 1814, has 150 sittings.

The Jews' Synagogue, in High street, erected by Simon Magnus, a merchant of Chatham, to the memory of his son, will seat 150.

The Wesleyan chapel, in High street, erected in 1813 has sittings for 750. The Congregational chapel, The Vines, erected in 1850, will seat 500 persons. Bartholomew Free church, in Cross street, erected in 1878, has 450 sittings. The Free Methodist chapel, on Star hill, erected in 1856, will seat 500.

The Baptist chapel, in Maidstone road, was erected in 1888, at a cost (including alterations of "Moat house" for Sunday schools) of £850; there are 350 sittings.

St. Margaret's Cemetery, on the Maidstone road, is twelve acres in extent; it has two mortuary chapels, and is under the control of a burial board of 9 members.

St. Nicholas' Cemetery, on the Maidstone road, has an area of four acres, with mortuary chapels, and is also under the control of a burial board of 9 members.

The Guildhall, erected in 1687, is an edifice of red brick, supported on columns forming an open basement, and a gilt ship serves as a vane; it contains portraits of William III., Queen Anne, and Admiral Sir Cloudesley Shovel, who represented the city in Parliament. The Corn Exchange, in the High street, rebuilt in 1870-1, occupies the site of the old Clock House, a structure of red brick, erected in 1706-8 by Sir Cloudesley Shovel, the pedimented front of which, together with its projecting clock, still remain; over the Exchange is a large assembly Toom, with a daïs at the further end. The basement of the Exchange, entered from Pump lane, has been assigned to the Rochester Free Library, founded in 1887, and containing 2,500 volumes of standard works, comprising works of reference, fiction, biography, science and art and German and French classes.

Eastgate House, in High street, is a fine example of the Domestic architecture of the 16th century, and is rich in oak panel work, carved overmantels and elaborate ceilings. It was purchased as a memorial of the Diamond Jubilee of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria, and has been thoroughly restored and cleared of all modern fittings and additions, and the collections of the Museum, founded in 1892, to illustrate the history and natural history of the district, have been placed in it. These collections comprise numerous fossils from the local chalk deposits, and an extensive series of British, Roman, Anglo-Saxon and Mediæval antiquities. One large room is devoted to the magnificent collection of Kentish birds and natural history books, bequeathed to the city by the late Mr. Walter Prentis, of Rainham. Another room is filled with a valuable series of local engravings; while the hall is adorned with portraits of the Royal and distinguished visitors to Rochester from the 14th to the 18th century. Eastgate House was the residence of Sir Peter Bucke knt. c. 1590. In 1604 he there entertained King James I., the Queen (Anne of Denmark), King Christian IV. of Denmark, and the Prince of Wales. During the 18th and the early part of the 19th centuries the house was used as a ladies' school, since that time it has been let for various purposes.

Markets are held every Tuesday for corn and cattle. A fair is held at Rochester on the 18th May and at Strood on the 26th, 27th and 28th of August. Some trade is carried on by means of the Medway, and vessels of considerable tonnage come up the river.

In 1901 158 British sailing and steam vessels of 24,063 tonnage entered the port with cargoes and in ballast, and 20 cleared of 14,062 tons, and 153 Foreign vessels entered of 64,474 tonnage and 60 cleared of 15,683 tons.

In the general coasting trade 1,046 sailing and steam vessels entered in the port with cargoes in 1901 of 300,430 tonnage, and 904 cleared of 107,073 tons. In the same year 170 vessels entered in ballast of 20,904 tonnage and 529 cleared of 250,803 tons.

The number of vessels registered under part I of the "Merchant Shipping Act, 1894," as belonging to the port, December 31, 1901, was 1,061 of 57,732 tons.

The number of fishing boats registered at the same date, as belonging to the port, under part IV of the same Act was 17 only employing 38 men and boys.

A small import trade is done, the total value of all articles in 1901 being £275,276.

There is a custom house, the revenue collected in 1901 was £8,844.

The Lock-up is used for the purposes of local jurisdiction. Convicted prisoners are taken to Maidstone prison.

The County Court Offices, in High street, erected in 1862, form a building of red brick, in a modified Tudor style.

City of Rochester Liberal Club, Castle hill, erected in 1889 at a cost of £6,200, the property of a limited liability company, is a structure of brick, with Bath stone facings; it has a hall, seating 650 persons.

The Rochester and Strood Conservative Club, on Star hill, built on the site of the Old Theatre by a Limited Liability Company, at a cost of £3,000, and opened on December 10th, 1884, contains a large hall capable of seating 400 persons.

The Rochester and County Club is at Castle Moat, and the Castle Club near Rochester bridge.

Fort Pitt, on an elevated site overlooking the Medway, was erected in the early part of this century, and is now used as a military hospital, the original building having been considerably enlarged.

The Recreation ground near Fort Pitt and Chatham railway station affords extensive views of the city and river.

The Vines, once the vineyard of the monks, is another place of recreation off the Maidstone road.

The Rochester and Chatham Joint Hospital Board (St. William's Hospital) Infectious Diseases Hospital, Delce road, was erected in 1883, at a cost of about £6,000, for 32 inmates; it is now (1902) being extended at a cost of £9,000.

A Small Pox Hospital has recently (1902) been erected by the Board in Delce lane, about half a mile from St. William's Hospital.

The Poor Travellers' House was founded and endowed in 1579 by Richard Watts, for six poor travellers, "not being common rogues nor proctors"; each traveller receives a night's lodging, a supper and fourpence on leaving in the morning; the revenues, which at the time of the donor's death were small, have so increased as to amount at the present time (1902) to upwards of £4,000 yearly; in July 1883, a scheme was sanctioned by the Court of Chancery for building almshouses for men and women, and these have since been erected in the Maidstone road, at a cost of nearly £10,000, in the Tudor style, with two fine gateways, each costing £350, from designs by Mr. Webb, of London; the scheme likewise empowered the trustees to give a sum of £4,000 towards the erection of St. Bartholomew's Hospital, and a sum of £1,000 yearly towards its support. The charity of Richard Watts is now administered under a subsequent scheme of the Court of Chancery, framed in 1886; the main objects of the charity are the maintenance of 14 inmates at the above almshouses, and of a staff of nurses for the gratuitous nursing of the poor; the maintenance of the poor travellers' house, and of swimming and hot water baths, and the apprenticing of poor children to some honest trade or calling.

The House of Industry, founded by Sir J. Hayward, of Rochester, in the year 1823, is available for one man and eight poor women, and there are apartments for the caretaker.

St. Bartholomew's Hospital, originally founded by Gundulph, stands on the borders of Rochester and Chatham, and particulars are given with the latter town.

St. Catherine's Hospital, Eastgate, originally founded by Symond Potyn, of Rochester, in 1316, for lepers, is now appropriated as the residence of twenty-two aged females, each with a pension of £28 yearly.

Hawkins' charity, founded by Sir John Hawkins, in 1592, and situated in Chatham Intra, is for decayed seamen; the inmates are appointed by the dock authorities; deputy-governor and receiver, A. A. Arnold, The Precincts.

Other charities, producing £150 yearly, are distributed in bread.

There are some ancient houses in the city, notably Satis house, the Restoration house (Elizabethan), facing the Vines, Eastgate house (16th century), in the High street, and the Crown and Bull inns.

Rochester Castle, near the bridge, built by Gundulph, is an ancient Norman edifice, with very thick walls of Kentish ragstone; but little remains except the magnificent keep, one of the finest castellated ruins in the kingdom, and consisting of a massive structure, 70 feet square and 104 feet high, with flat buttresses and a turret at each angle, three of these being square and the fourth circular: a quantity of pigeons have made the keep their home: the Castle, with its grounds, was purchased in 1883 by the Corporation from the Earl of Jersey, at a cost of from £6,000 to £7,000, and the grounds subsequently laid out for public recreation at a cost of £2,000, and a band stand erected. From the summit of the keep extensive views of the neighbouring country are obtained, and access is obtained on payment of a small fee. Along the bank of the river Medway there is an esplanade, and a pier has been constructed.

The area of St. Margaret's Intra parish is 2,178 acres of land, 84 of tidal water, and 86 of foreshore; rateable value, £48,039; population in 1901, 14,408, including 223 in Fort Pitt Military Hospital, 28 in Fort Clarence Military Prison, 311 in Borstal Convict Prison and 89 in St. Bartholomew's Hospital, and 62 in St. William's Infectious Diseases Hospital.

The area of St. Nicholas parish is 125 acres of land, 52 of tidal water and 16 of foreshore; rateable value, £25,129; population in 1901, 2,590, including 145 on board vessels and barges.

Cathedral precincts, area 7 acres; rateable value, £929; population in 1901, 92.

The area of St. Margaret's Extra civil parish is 323 acres; rateable value, £139; the population in 1901 was 15.

The population of the Municipal and Parliamentary borough and of the Rochester and Strood Urban district in 1901 was: --

Cathedral Precinct	92
Chatham (part of)	358
Frindsbury Intra	2,986

SCHOOLS.

The King's School was founded by King Henry VIII.

A.D. 1542. The foundation scholars, who receive free education, are selected, after an examination, by the Dean & Chapter of Rochester, any boy between the ages of nine & fifteen being eligible; there are also four exhibitions, of the yearly value of £60, paid by the Dean & Chapter & tenable at the Universities or any place of higher education; & two Gunsley Exhibitions at University College, Oxford, of the yearly value of £45; annual prizes are also given to those pupils who distinguish themselves most in classics, mathematics, modern languages & science; a school house has been erected in the Vines for 25 boarders, & there is a cricket ground of 4 acres levelled & enclosed close to the school; Governors: The Dean & Chapter; Rev. Thomas Frederick Hobson M.A. late scholar of Christ Church, Oxford, head master

The Mathematical School was founded by Sir Joseph Williamson in 1704, in the reign of Queen Anne, its original object being the teaching of mathematics, navigation & other matters appertaining to the sea, but under the provisions of the scheme issued in 1878, it is now organized as a school for general education, & is available for 300 boys, including from 25 to 30 foundation scholars, with a gross endowment of about £1,400 a year. The buildings were considerably enlarged in 1893-4 by the erection in the High street of a substantial block containing a gymnasium, assembly hall, & science & art rooms &c. The school is managed by a body of 22 governors, of whom 4 are ex-officio, 4 co-optative & 14 representative; chairman, the Mayor of Rochester; R. A. Arnold esq. clerk; Charles Bird esq. B.A.Lond., F.G.S. head master; Paul Mathews M.A. second master, & 8 assistant masters

Rochester Grammar School for Girls, Maidstone road, was founded 3 April, 1888, under a scheme of the Charity Commissioners, out of an Educational grant of £10,000, made by the Wardens & Commonalty of Rochester Bridge, £6,000 of which is for the building & general endowment of the school, the remaining £4,000 being assigned to the Mathematical school; the buildings, opened in 1889, comprise ten class rooms, a large assembly hall, dining room, lecture, music & art rooms, library, cloak room, kitchen science lecture room, & a well-fitted laboratory, & there is also a good playground. The school now numbers about 230 pupils, some of whom are foundation scholars. Foundation scholarships, in the form of total or partial exemption from fees, are awarded in the proportion of not more than one for every 10 girls in the school; the school is managed by a body of 22 governors, of whom 4 are ex-officio, 4 co-optative & 14 representative; boarders are received at Trevine, Boley hill; Miss Easton, head mistress
