ROCHESTER,
WITH STROOD, FRINDSBURY AND UPNOR.

ROCHESTER is a city and parliamentary and municipal borough, the head of a Bishop's see, and of a petty sessional division, the seat of a customs port of entry and head quarters of an inland revenue district, and is 29 miles from London, 8 north from Maidstone, 7 south-east from Gravesend, 27 north-west from Canterbury and 42 in the same direction from Dover, on the high road to Dover, and on the south bank of the navigable river Medway, in the Mid division of the county, lathe of Aylesford and Medway union, Strood and Frindsbury forming part of the Strood union, and in the rural deanery and archdeaconry of Rochester. The North Kent section of the South Eastern and Chatham railway has a station at Strood, the line crossing the Medway by an iron lattice bridge, constructed in 1890; the line is continued with a station at Rochester, and a terminal station near the boundary of Rochester and Chatham, called the Chatham central station. The Chatham section of this railway has a station at Rochester bridge, in Strood, where the line crosses the river by a girder bridge, and there is another station in the Rochester High street. The city, which is built on a somewhat irregular plan, and extends for a considerable distance along the bank of the Medway, is connected with Strood by a handsome and substantial iron bridge of three arches, erected in 1857 and 1858, from designs by Sir William Cubitt, at a cost of £200,000, defrayed partly by accumulated funds arising from the bridge estates, the remainder having been borrowed on mortgage; the bridge has a centre arch of 178 feet, and two side arches of 140 feet each; the bridge is now (1913) being rebuilt. The river Medway is under the jurisdiction of a Conservancy Board, to whom in March, 1882, the Corporation surrendered all their ancient privileges and superintendence over the river Medway for a sum of £65,000.

The first charter of incorporation was granted by Henry II. in 1165, and confirmed by succeeding monarchs up to the time of Charles I. by whom a new charter was granted; the municipal body now comprises a mayor, recorder, 6 aldermen and 18 councillors; under the provisions of the "Municipal Corporations Act, 1835," the borough was divided in three wards. By an Order in Council, dated 13th May, 1901, it was re-divided into six wards, viz.: Frindsbury, St. Margaret, St. Nicholas,

St. Peter, Strood and Troy Town; quarter sessions are held here, and there is also a commission of the peace for the city, which is well lighted with gas by the Rochester, Chatham and Gillingham Gas Co. and supplied with water from works at Luton, belonging to the Brompton, Chatham, Gillingham and Rochester Waterworks Company.

The parliamentary borough returned two members from Edward I. until the passing of the "Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885," which reduced the number to one. The limits are co-extensive with the municipal borough and comprise Rochester, Frindsbury Intra and Strood Intra.

By an Order of the County Council, confirmed by Order, No. 31,627, of the Local Government Board, dated Sept. 30th, 1894, and under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 & 57 Vict. c. 73), the parish of St. Margaret Rochester was divided into two, Intra and Extra, the former comprising that part of the old parish in the municipal borough, and Extra the remainder, and by further Order of the Council, dated April, 1905, confirmed by the Board, Extra was extinguished as a parish, and added to that of Wouldham, in Malling Union and the title of Intra altered to St. Margaret.

The limits of the port of Rochester were declared October 31st, 1882, to extend from the north-eastern extremity of the Isle of Grain in Kent, easterly across the entrance to the Medway and along the coast of the Isle of Sheppy, to the Land's End in the parish of Warden (being the boundary of the port of Faversham), and to extend seawards from the coast within the said limits three miles from low water mark, including the river Medway, and also the water called the "West Swale," as far as an imaginary line drawn from Elmley Chapel, in the Isle of Sheppy, to Swale Church (limits of the port of London), on the mainland, the said line being the boundary of the port of Faversham, and including further all islands, creeks, harbours and places within the said limits.

In 1911, 91 sailing and steam vessels of 21,276 tonnage arrived at the port (including Chatham) from British possessions with cargoes and in ballast, and 104 foreign vessels of 42,778 tonnage, and the total number departed was 64 of 29,208 tons.

In the general coasting trade 1,149 sailing and steam vessels arrived at the port with cargoes and in ballast in 1911 of 351,597 tonnage, and 1,240 departed of 391,504 tons.

The number of vessels registered under part I. of the "Merchant Shipping Act, 1894," as belonging to the port, December 31, 1911, was 880 of 47,485 tons.

The number of fishing boats registered at the same date as belonging to the port, under part IV. of the same Act, was 22, employing 53 men and boys.

Fishing boats and their implements are distinguished by the letters R. R.

The total value of all articles imported in 1911 was £279,427 (of which £90,335 was wood and timber), and the exports (produce and manufactures of the United Kingdom) were 49,405 tons of cement of the value of £21,979, and other articles of the value of £4,766, together £26,745.

There is a custom house; the gross amount of customs revenue received in 1911 was £6,081.

Rochester was called by the Britons Dourbryf, signifying "a swift stream," in allusion to the rapidity of the Medway. The Romans called it Durobrovis and Durobrovum: by the Saxons it was denominated Hroffeceaster, from the name of one Hroffe or Roffe, who erected some buildings here, and from the Roman "castrum," implying that the Romans had a fortified port here, hence the Latinised adjective Roffensis. Ethelbert the Bretwalda and King of Kent founded a Bishop's see here in 604, when Justus, who was sent from Rome A.D. 601, to assist St. Augustine in the conversion of the Anglo-Saxons to Christianity, was appointed the first bishop. In 676 the city was destroyed by Ethelred, King of Mercia, and again by the Danes in 839: being rebuilt it was besieged by these marauders in 885, but relieved by King Alfred: in 998 sacked by the Danes, and in 1088, William Rufus, after a six weeks' siege, took the castle.

Rochester was nearly destroyed by fire in 1130 and 1137, and in 1174 the city and part of the cathedral were burned. In 1215 the castle was taken by King John, after a siege of twelve months; in 1216 it surrendered to the Dauphin Louis of France and in 1217 was retaken. Simon de Montfort, Earl of Leicester, the founder of our Parliamentary liberties, made an attempt upon the castle in 1264, and failing to capture it, held possession of the city and despoiled the church: Wat Tyler, in his insurrection of 1381, also attacked the castle, and here too Jack Cade's rabble routed themselves. Queen Elizabeth visited this city in 1573; Charles II. slept here on his landing at the Restoration, and the Dutch in Charles II.'s time sailed up the Medway and burnt several vessels, and in 1688 King James II. on his abdication, secretly embarked at Rochester in his flight to the Continent.

The see of Rochester was founded by St. Augustine early in the 7th century. In Saxon times the cathedral church was parochial as well as cathedral, and was served by secular priests, and the outline of the eastern apse of the first church built here is traced on the floor of the cathedral near the small doorway of the west front: Gundulph, the second Norman bishop, replaced the seculars by regulars, and built a new cathedral church, the eastern parts of which were devoted to the use of the monks, while the nave served as a parish church, the vicar being appointed by the monks: when in 1423 the parishioners built a separate parish church (St. Nicholas), the cathedral church then ceased to be parochial.

The Cathedral of St. Andrew, Rochester, was begun by Bishop Gundulph, 1077-1108, but is of various ages, and consists of choir, with aisles and transepts, nave, aisles, transepts with transeptal chapels on the eastern side and a central tower and spire; adjoining the north end of the great transept on the east are the remains of Gundulph's tower, a massive building 24 feet square, with walls 6 feet in thickness, and probably once forming a transept tower, as at Exeter. Ernulph, the architect of great works, while Bishop of Rochester (1114-25), built the dormitory, infirmary and chapter house: the narrow Early English choir, of which William de Hoo, when sacrist, is the reputed builder, was first used May 9th, 1227, and is raised considerably above the nave, and approached by a flight of steps to an arched entrance in the wall, closed by gates, separating the choir from the nave; each side of the choir has four compartments with lancet arches, and the roof is groined, springing from clustered shafts of dark marble: the choir was restored by the late Sir Gilbert Scott R.A. in 1874-5, when much of the original woodwork of the 13th century, with other portions added in the 16th century, as well as some 14th century wall-painting above the stalls, was carefully preserved and the floor richly paved: the walls are adorned with the fleur-de-lis and lion, and the arms of successive bishops from Gundulph: on the south side are three Decorated sedilia, restored in 1825, which mark the ancient site of the high altar, before the Lady chapel was thrown into the choir in the 15th century: the choir transepts were added by William de Hoo, with the offerings made at St. William's shrine and the north transept is a chapel dedicated to that saint (canonized in 1256); the south transept of the nave is roofed with oak, part dating from the time of Edward I.: the crypt, which extends under the whole length of the choir, is mostly Early English, and was completed by William de Hoo in 1227; it was restored and repaved about 1897 at a cost of between £600 and £700: the black paint applied to the pillars of the transepts, choir, sanctuary and presbytery in 1730 was removed in 1912, the expense of the work being borne by Canon J. Wood: the tower rises from the intersection of the western or great transept with the nave and choir, and, as originally built in 1352 by Bishop Shepey and Hamo de Hethe, consisted of a low tower with a short and inelegant though venerable spire, added in 1479: the debased and incongruous structure erected by Mr. Cottingham in 1827 was, in 1904, replaced by a square tower with spire, at a cost, including two additional bells, of over £5,000: the north wing of the main transept, Early English, was built c. 1250 by the monk Richard de Eastgate, sacrist, and Thomas de Meopham; and the south wing by the monk Richard de Waldene about the year 1300: on the western side of the south wing is St. Mary's chapel of three bays, and on the eastern side the muniment room.

The stone screen between the nave and choir was adorned in 1890 with canopied niches to contain figures of bishops, as a memorial to the Very Rev. Robert Scott D.D. dean of Rochester 1870-87; this screen supports the organ, which is in two parts, and serves for the Divine services held both in the nave and choir: it was originally built by Green in 1791, and after many changes has been rebuilt and enlarged at a cost of £2,100.

The nave is one of the most ancient in the kingdom and is Norman (except the two easternmost arches on each side, rebuilt probably with the intention of its complete reconstruction; the arcades, therefore, consist of six Norman and two Early English arches, two of the Norman piers being octagonal and others having attached shafts; above is a rich triforium of semi-circular arches, opening into the aisles, but extending along the six Norman bays only, and above this rises a lofty clerestory, with windows of late Perpendicular date; the modern oak roof is flat, supported on corbels; the font, placed at the west end of the nave, is a memorial to the late Rev. Henry William Burrows B.D. Canon of Rochester 1881-92; the north choir aisle was begun by Richard de Eastgate and completed by William Axenham in the 13th century; the south aisle of the choir was built in 1240. The restoration of the west front, a noble specimen of the Norman style, was begun in 1888, and completed about 1898; the total cost of this and works connected with it amounted to £7,358; the doorway, although much worn, is altogether unrivalled as an example of the Norman style; it consists of a deeply recessed semi-circular arch, enriched with beautiful mouldings of four orders, on shafts with highly elaborated capitals; on the two opposite shafts are figures, much defaced, of Henry I. and Queen Maud, and the tympanum bears reliefs of Our Lord and the Apostles, with figures of cherubim and evangelistic symbols; on either side of the arch and extending across the flanking turrets is an arcading with niches, inclosing recently placed figures of Gundulph and John of Canterbury, presented by the Freemasons of the neighbourhood; the four arcaded turrets at the end of the nave and aisles, destroyed about 1760, have been completely restored, and were finished in 1894; the two smaller turrets which flank the great west window rise to the parapet in three square stages, and above this in two octagonal stages, and terminate in spirelets; the turrets at the end of the aisles are considerably larger, but differ from each other; that at the north-west has five square stages and a kind of low broach spire; the south-west turret is also square in its three lower stages and octagonal on the two upper stages, and is finished with spired capping, its height being greater than that of the corresponding turret; the whole of these turrets are enriched with narrow arcading.

The west ends of the aisles have enriched Norman windows, but the rest of the exterior of the nave is plain: the large Perpendicular west window of eight lights is of the date of Henry VII.; this and the Norman windows were filled with stained glass in 1885 as memorials to the Royal Engineers who fell in Afghanistan and South Africa, as recorded on each side of the doorway; the stained east window was replaced in its original form in 1874; at the south end of the great transept memorial windows were unveiled Aug. 9, 1888, to Maj.-Gen. Charles George Gordon R.E., C.B. killed at Khartoum, 26 Jan. 1885, and to the officers and men of the Royal Engineers who were killed, or died from their wounds or disease, in the Egyptian and Soudan Campaigns of 1881 to 1885, and to those officers who served and were killed in the Peninsular and at Waterloo; at the north end of this transept are other stained windows.

The principal monuments in the cathedral are as follows: North-east transept -- Bishop Walter de Merton, drowned in 1278, a fine tomb dating from the transitional period between Early English and Decorated, with pyramidal canopies, restored by Hussey in 1849; Bishop John Lowe, ob. 1467, an altar-tomb; here also was the shrine of St. William of Rochester, a baker of Perth, murdered outside the walls of Rochester, when on a pilgrimage to Jerusalem, in 1201, by a servant of Prior Silvestar and canonized in 1256; north side of choir -- Bishop John de Shepey, ob. 1361, an effigy with original colouring, discovered in 1825, and modern canopy; Presbytery, north side -- Bishop Gundulph, ob. 1107, a simple stone cist; and Bishop Thomas Inglethorpe, ob. 1291, with a canopied effigy of Petworth marble; south side -- Bishop Laurence de St. Martin, ob. 1274, with a perfect effigy, beneath an Early Decorated canopy; and Bishop Gilbert de Glanvill, ob. 1214, a coped tomb of Petworth marble, much mutilated; south choir aisle -- Bishop John de Bradfield, ob. 1283, a mutilated tomb, with canopy and effigy; north-east transept aisle -- Bishop Hamo de Hethe, ob. 1352, with a rich canopy of Decorated work; nave -- tomb of John, 1st Baron Henniker, d. April 18th, 1803; and an incised slab to Bishop John Fisher, ob. 1535; there is also a monument to Richard Watts, ob. 1579, the founder of the charity bearing his name; a brass tablet to the celebrated novelist, Charles Dickens, whose boyhood was passed in Rochester and who died at Gad's Hill place, near the city, June 9, 1870; a marble portrait medallion of Joseph Maas, the singer, d. 1886, formerly a chorister here, and a recumbent marble effigy of the late Dean Hole, d. 1904.

The total length of the cathedral is 310 ft. the nave being 159 ft. long by 65 ft. 4 in. broad and 55 ft. high, and the choir 110 ft. 6 in. long, or, with the lady chapel, about 164 ft.; the main transept extends for 122 ft. 3 in. the choir transept for 92 ft. and the west front has an extreme breadth of 94 ft.; the central tower is 156 ft. high and Gundulph's tower 95 ft.; at the south-east corner are some Norman remains of the ancient chapter house and cloisters; the former, partly erected by Bishop Hamo de Hethe and now rebuilt, has a very beautiful west front, elaborately carved with the zodiacal signs; the doorway, attributed to Bishop Shepey, 1352, is a rich work, set between two highly-sculptured arches and represents the Church as a prelate and the Jewish Synagogue as a woman blind-fold, with other figures, apparently of ecclesiastics, accompanied by symbolical designs; the cloister occupies a unique position on the south-east side of the choir, an arrangement which occurs in no other cathedral; to its southern wall was attached the refectory, built by Silvester, the prior, after 1177 and there still exist remains of a passage through the wall to the pulpit, as at Chester Cathedral and Beaulieu Abbey, Hants. A sum of £14,000 was spent between 1827 and 1834 in restorations; in 1840 the whole interior of the cathedral was renovated and during the period 1871-79 a further scheme of restoration was carried out at a cost of £23,300, and since then several stained windows have been erected by the Royal Engineers, at a probable cost of £2,000. The library of upwards of 1,100 volumes, contains some ancient MSS. and among others the celebrated register of the diocese, the "Textus Roffensis," A.D. 1120, and the "Custumale Roffense," composed about 1320.

The establishment of the cathedral consists of a dean, four canons, two minor canons, six lay clerks, eight choristers and four probationers, with a Grammar school attached, having on the Foundation a master and twenty scholars. The Bishop's see comprises the archdeaconries of Rochester and Tonbridge, both in this county; Southwark, until 1905 an archdeaconry of this see, is now the seat of a bishopric. Three gates of the Priory remain: -- The Prior's, an embattled tower on the south-east; the Deanery or Sacristy, adjoining the north transept; and the College Yard or Cemetery Gate, which led from the Market cross to the west door, stands near the High street. Of the three precinct gates, the north, or St. William's, is destroyed, but the embattled arch of the south cloister still exists. Minor Canon row was built in 1736. The ancient Bishop's palace is divided into dwelling houses.

Rochester had formerly four parish churches, but the site of St. Mary's is unknown.

The church of St. Margaret is of stone, now chiefly in the Italian style, having been wholly rebuilt, with the exception of the tower, at the beginning of the last century, but retains a plain embattled western tower, of Perpendicular date, containing 8 bells: in the church is a palimpsest brass, with half effigy, to Thomas Cod, vicar, 1465: in 1872 the church was restored and renewed and a stained east window inserted: there are 900 sittings, 450 being free. The register dates from the year 1620. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £265, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter, and held since 1902 by the Rev. Joseph Kershaw Wilson M.A. of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge.

The church of St. Nicholas is chiefly of flint in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles; it was erected in 1421, but was enlarged in 1624, when the interior was remodelled in the style of the Renaissance; it was restored in 1892, and has a tower, of Perpendicular date, containing 2 bells: there are several brasses and tablets to the Foord and Gordon families, and a curious octagonal stone font with the word "Cristian" round it in ancient capitals: the vestry was added in 1905, and the church restored in 1908: the church possesses some very valuable communion plate, the gift of former citizens, dates 1605-1703: there are sittings for 954, about 320 being free. The register dates from the year 1624. The living is a vicarage, with the rectory of St. Clement annexed, net income £220, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Rochester, and held since 1899 by the Rev. Augustine Briggs M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge, and F.R.G.S.

St. Clement's church has been demolished and the parish is united to that of St. Nicholas.

St. Peter's is an ecclesiastical parish, formed 28 August, 1860, out of St. Margaret's; the church, erected in 1859, at a cost of £6,000, is of stone and brick, in the Decorated style, and has a tower, containing a clock and one bell: the carved oak frontal, with figures of the Holy Family, is a memorial to the Rev. Herbert Witherby M.A. vicar 1885-99, and Mary his wife: the east and west windows are memorials to members of the Nicholson family: there are 800 sittings, 561 being free. The register dates from the year 1860. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £300, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Rochester, and held since 1899 by the Rev. Henry Arthur Hickin, of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge.

BORSTAL is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1902, by an Order of the King in Council, from the parish of St. Margaret. The church of St. Matthew is a building of stone, consisting of chancel and nave: there are 350 sittings. The register dates from the year 1902. The living is a vicarage, in the gift of the vicar of St. Margaret's, net yearly value £214, with residence, and held since 1906 by the Rev. Frederick John Everett, of London University. Here is H.M. Borstal Institution.

The Meeting House for the Society of Friends, in Northgate, erected in 1814, has 150 sittings.

The Jews' Synagogue, in High street, erected by Simon Magnus, a merchant of Chatham, to the memory of his son, will seat 150.

The Wesleyan chapel, in High street, erected in 1813, has sittings for 750. The Congregational chapel, in The Vines, erected in 1853, is a structure of stone in the Gothic style, and will seat 750 persons. The Friends' Mission, formerly Bartholomew Free church, in Princes street, was erected in 1878, and enlarged in 1907, and has 450 sittings. The United Methodist chapel, on Star hill, erected in 1856, will seat 500.

The Baptist chapel, in Maidstone road, erected in 1907 at a cost, including site, school and church parlour, of £6,200, is of red brick with Bath stone dressings in the Gothic style, and will seat about 650 persons.

St. Margaret's Cemetery, on the Maidstone road is twelve acra in extent; it has two mortuary chapels, and is under the control of a burial board of 9 members.

St. Nicholas' Cemetery, on the Maidstone road. has an area of four acres, with mortuary chapels and is also under the control of a burial board of 9 members.

The Guildhall, erected in 1687, stands at the west end of the High street, and is an edifice of red brick, supported on columns forming an open basement; above is a cupola, with a gilt ship serving as a vane; the interior contains portraits of William III., Queen Anne, and Admiral Sir Cloudesley Shovel. who represented the city in Parliament. The Corn Exchange, in the High street, rebuilt in 1870-1, occupies the site of the old Clock House, a structure of red brick, erected in 1706-8 by Sir Cloudesley Shovel, the pedimented front of which, together with its projecting clock and open cupola, still remain; over the Exchange is a large assembly room, with a dais at the further end. The basement of the Exchange, entered from Northgate, has been assigned to the Rochester Free Library, founded in 1887, and now containing over 7,000 volumes.

Eastgate House, in High street, is a fine example of the Domestic timber-framed style of the 16th century, dating from 1590, and is rich in oak panel work, carved overmantels and elaborate ceilings. It was purchased as a memorial of the Diamond Jubilee of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria in 1897, and has been thoroughly restored and cleared of all modern fittings and additions, and the collections of the Museum, founded in 1891, to illustrate the history and natural history of the district, have been placed in it, and most carefully arranged by Mr. G. Payne F.S.A, the director. These collections comprise numerous fossils from the local chalk deposits, and an extensive series of British, Roman, Anglo-Saxon and Mediæval antiquities. One large room is devoted to the magnificent collection of Kentish birds and natural history books, bequeathed to the city by the late Mr. Walter Prentis, of Rainham. Another room is filled with a valuable series of local engravings; while the grand stairs are adorned with portraits of the Royal and distinguished visitors to Rochester from the 14th to the 18th century. Eastgate House was the residence of Sir Peter Bucke knt. c. 1590. In 1604 he there entertained King James I., the Queen (Anne of Denmark), King Christian IV. of Denmark, and the Prince of Wales. During the 18th and the early part of the 19th centuries the house was used as a ladies' school, since that time it has been let for various purposes, and is the "Nuns' Hous" of "Edwin Drood."

The Technical Institute and School of Art, in Eastgate, was erected in 1907 from designs by Messrs. Russell and

Cooper, of London, at a cost of £11,000, and in 1913 woodwork and laundry centres were added.

Markets are held every Tuesday for corn and cattle.
A fair is held at Rochester on the 18th May and at Strood on the 26th, 27th and 28th of August. Some trade is carried on by means of the Medway, and vessels of considerable tonnage come up the river.

The Lock-up is used for the purposes of local jurisdiction. Convicted prisoners are taken to Maidstone prison.

The County Court Offices, in High street, erected in 1862, form a building of red brick, in a modified Tudor style.

The City of Rochester Liberal Club, Castle hill, erected in 1889 at a cost of £6,200, and the property of a limited liability company, is a structure of brick, with Bath stone facings, and contains a hall, seating 650 persons.

The Rochester and Strood Conservative Club, on Star hill, built on the site of the Old Theatre by a limited liability company, at a cost of £3,000, and opened on December 10th, 1884, contains a large hall capable of seating 400 persons.

The Rochester and County Club is at Castle Moat, and the Castle Club on the Esplanade. near Rochester bridge.

Fort Pitt, on an elevated site overlooking the Medway, was erected in the early part of last century, and is now used as a military hospital, the original building having been considerably enlarged.

The Victoria Gardens near Fort Pitt and Chatham railway station afford extensive views of the city and river.

The Vines, once the vineyard of the priory of St.
Andrew, on the high ground to the south of the cathedral, and extending to the Maidstone road, is a fine stretch of greensward, sheltered by trees and furnished with seats, and open like the Castle grounds as a place of public recreation.

The Rochester and Chatham Joint Hospital Board (St.
William's Hospital) Infectious Diseases Hospital, Delce road, was erected in 1883, at a cost of about £6,000, for 32 inmates, and in 1903 was extended at a cost of £10,000.

A Small Pox Hospital, erected in 1902 by the Board in Delce lane, is connected with, and about half a mile from St. William's Hospital.

The Poor Travellers' House, in the High street, rendered famous by its mention in Dickens's "Seven Poor Travellers," was founded and endowed in 1579 by Richard Watts, for six poor travellers, "not being rogues nor proctor"; each traveller receives a night's lodging, a supper and fourpence on leaving in the morning; the front of the building, which has three gables, has been somewhat altered, but in the rear is an open space with a gallery which formed part of the original building: on the front let into panels are several quaint inscriptions and the arms of the founder; the revenues, which at the time of the donor's death were small, have so increased as to amount at the present time (1913) to upwards of £10,000 yearly: in July, 1883, a scheme was sanctioned by the Court of Chancery for building almshouses for men and women, and these have since been erected in the Maidstone road, at a cost of nearly £10,000, in the Tudor style, with two fine gateways, each costing £350, from designs by Mr. Webb, of London; the scheme likewise empowered the trustees to give a sum of £4,000 towards the erection of St. Bartholomew's Hospital, and a sum of £1,000 yearly towards its support. The charity of Richard Watts is now administered under a subsequent scheme of the Court of Chancery, framed in 1886; the main objects of the charity are the maintenance of 14 inmates at the above almshouses, and of a staff of nurses for the gratuitous nursing of the poor; the maintenance of the poor travellers' house, and of swimming and hot water baths, and the apprenticing of poor children to some honest trade or calling.

The House of Industry, founded by Sir J. Hayward, of Rochester, in the year 1823, is available for nine poor women, and there are apartments for the caretaker.

St. Bartholomew's Hospital was originally founded by Gundulph, Bishop of Rochester, in 1078, for the benefit of lepers returning from the Crusades, and after being many years in abeyance was reconstituted in 1858 and a General hospital erected on the New road, and opened in 1863; it is supported from the revenues of St. Bartholomew's Hospital and a grant of £1,000 yearly from Watts' charity, Rochester, as well as by voluntary subscriptions, and these revenues are now administered by trustees appointed by the Court of Chancery. In 1880 an addition was made for outdoor patients, at a cost of £2,200; extensive alterations and additions were carried out in 1905, at a cost of about £14,000, including a detached house for 30 sisters and nurses, and an additional ward for children.

St. Bartholomew's chapel, standing on the site of an ancient hospital for lepers, now serves as a chapel for the General Hospital, erected in 1863 in New road; the remains of the chapel were discovered in 1874, during the carrying out of some improvements in the High street, and the restoration, begun in July, 1880, was completed in April, 1881, at a total cost of about £1,350: the tower contains one bell: the chancel, dating from about 1350, retains original Norman windows and an ancient doorway: the windows of the north chapel, also Norman, have been re-opened, as well as three others in the nave, two of which retain their original wooden lintels: there are 120 sittings, and such as are not required for the hospital staff are entirely free and unappropriated. The chaplaincy, yearly value £200, in the gift of the Dean of Rochester, has been held since 1878 by the Rev. John Bailey B.A., LL.B. of Trinity College, Dublin.

St. Catherine's Hospital, Star hill, originally founded by Symond Potyn, of Rochester, in 1316, for lepers, is now appropriated as the residence of twenty-two aged females, each with a pension of £28 yearly.

Hawkins's charity, founded by Sir John Hawkins, in 1592, and situated in Chatham Intra, is for decayed seamen; the inmates are appointed by the dock authorities; deputy-governor and receiver, R. A. Arnold, The Precincts.

Other charities, producing £150 yearly, are distributed in bread.

There are some ancient houses in the city, notably Satis house, in Boley hill, where, in 1573, Richard Watts entertained Queen Elizabeth; the Restoration house, an Elizabethan mansion on the Maidstone road, facing the Vines, where Charles II. stayed on the eve of his Restoration in 1660; Eastgate house, in the High street, now the city museum, and some timber-framed houses with overhanging gables, almost exactly opposite, and bearing the date 1684.

Rochester Castle, near the bridge, built by Gundulph, is an ancient Norman edifice, with very thick walls of Kentish ragstone; the magnificent keep, one of the finest castellated ruins in the kingdom, is a massive structure, 70 feet square and 104 feet high, on to the top of the turrets 120 feet, and walls with an average thickness of 12 feet, strengthened by flat buttresses and a turret at each angle, three of these being square and the fourth circular: considerable portions of the walls inclosing the precincts, with several towers more or less complete, are still standing, and include the Barbican, or north entrance from the street: a quantity of pigeons have made the keep their home: until 1869 the Castle, with its grounds, was let out in small allotments, but was purchased in 1883 by the Corporation from the Earl of Jersey, at a cost of from £6,000 to £7,000, and the grounds subsequently laid out for public recreation at a cost of £2,000, and a band stand erected: access to the keep is obtained by tickets sold at the curator's house on the spot: a series of rude stairways lead to the summit, from which extensive views of the river and the neighbouring country are obtained. Along the bank of the river Medway, below the castle, there is an esplanade, and a pier has also been constructed.

At the census of 1911 the area of St. Margaret parish was 2,179 acres of land, 84 of tidal water and 86 of foreshore; rateable value, 1913, 55,161; population, 1911, 15,253, including 137 in Fort Pitt Military Hospital, 28 in Fort Clarence Military Prison, 425 in Borstal Institution, 142 in St. Bartholomew's Hospital, and 39 in St. William's Infectious Diseases Hospital.

The area of St. Nicholas parish is 125 acres of land, 52 of tidal water and 16 of foreshore; rateable value, £26,916; population in 1911, 1,948.

Cathedral precinct, area 7 acres; rateable value, £922; population in 1911, 105.

SCHOOLS.

The King's School, one of the oldest public schools, was founded in the 7th century & refounded by Henry VIII. in 1542. The King's Scholars, who are on the Cathedral Foundation, are elected after examination each July, all boys under fifteen being eligible. Leaving Exhibitions of £60 a year for four years, tenable at the Universities or any place of higher education, are awarded in alternate years, & a Gunsley Close Exhibition of £45 a year for four years to University College, Oxford, is awarded biennially. There are also entrance scholarships, reserved for clergymen's sons, house exhibitions for boarders in the various houses, & many valuable annual prizes. There are now (1913) about 90 boys, & three boarding houses: the School house, Mr. Hornsby Wright's house & the Junior house. The Junior school at Allendale, 209 Maidstone road, is for boys from 8 to 13, who pass on into the senior school. The school playing fields are close to the school. Governors, the Dean & Chapter of Rochester Cathedral; Head Master, the Rev. William Parker B.D. of Trinity College, Dublin; Head Master of the Junior School, Bertram Elford esq. M.A. St. John's College, Oxford; & seven assistant masters

The Mathematical School was founded by Sir Joseph Williamson in 1701, in the reign of William & Mary, its original object being the teaching of mathematics, navigation & other matters appertaining to the sea, but under the provisions of the scheme issued in 1878, & revised in 1910, it is now organized as a school for general education, & has a gross endowment of about £1,000 a year. The buildings were considerably enlarged in 1893-4 by the erection in the High street of a substantial block containing a gymnasium, assembly hall & science & art rooms &c. From 8 to 10 scholarships are awarded annually in May, & there is one annual leaving exhibition; there are now about 300 boys. The school is managed by a body of 22 governors; Chairman, Charles Willis esq. J.P.; R. A. Arnold esq. clerk; Harry James Cape M.A.Oxon., B.A., B.Sc.Lond., F.R.Hist.Soc. head master; Paul Mathews M.A. second master, & 12 assistant masters

Rochester Grammar School for Girls, Maidstone road, was founded 3 April, 1886, under a scheme of the Charity Commissioners, out of an Educational grant of £10,000, made by the Wardens & Commonalty of Rochester Bridge, £6,000 of which is for the building & general endowment of the school, the remaining £4,000 being assigned to the Mathematical school; the buildings, opened in 1889, comprise ten class rooms, a large assembly hall, dining room, lecture, music & art rooms, library, cloak room, kitchen, & a well-fitted laboratory. There is also a good playground. The school now numbers over 200 pupils, some of whom are foundation scholars. Foundation scholarships, in the form of total or partial exemption from fees, are awarded in the proportion of not more than one for every 10 girls in the school; the school is managed by a body of 26 governors, of whom 22 are ex-officio & 4 co-optative or women governors; boarders are received at 199 Maidstone road; Miss Dora L. Sandford M.A. head mistress

School of Art, Technical Institute, Eastgate, George Ward A.R.C.A. head master Technical Institute, Eastgate, Robert L. Wills M.A.,
